TAX MANAGED STRATEGY 2

Fight the clawbacks – reduce line 234

Dividend income can be the least “income-friendly” to retirees because the grossed-up amount is reported on their tax returns. Although the dividend tax credit provides preferential tax treatment, the grossed-up amount exaggerates the total income on line 234.

Canadians age 65 and older may qualify for many valuable government benefits – Old Age Security and the Age Credit, are examples. However, if the income reported on line 234 of the Federal Income Tax Form is too high, these benefits can be clawed back and, in some cases, forfeited altogether. This can result in the loss of thousands of dollars in benefits.

AN IN-DEPTH LOOK AT THE ISSUE... AND THE OPPORTUNITIES

Avoiding clawbacks takes more than simply creating tax credits – which reduce the taxes owing. It is important to look at ways to actually reduce reported income. However, when retirement arrives, most of the familiar deductions (RRSP, pension, child care, union dues, etc.) are no longer available.

Following are two solutions for achieving this goal.

1. CAREFULLY STRUCTURE YOUR NON-REGISTERED INCOME

Active management of income-generating investments can significantly affect the way income is taxed, and may help reduce clawbacks. The following example, based on $10,000 of non-registered investment income, shows the impact of different types of investment income.

CONSIDER THE AMOUNT REPORTED ON YOUR TAX RETURN

Income of $10,000

SOURCE	% INCLUDED ON TAX RETURN	$ AMOUNT REPORTED
Eligible Dividends ¹	138	13,800
GIC/Bonds	100	10,000
Capital Gains	50	5,000
Prescribed Life Annuity	15 ²	1,500
Mutual/Segregated Fund Withdrawals	2.5 ³	250
Series T Mutual Fund	0 ⁴	0

¹ Dividends paid by public corporations qualify as "eligible dividends" and are included at 138%. Non-eligible dividends are included at 118% starting in 2014 (previously 125%).

² Taxable percentage approximated for a 65 year old female.

³ Taxable percentage in year one, grows to 20% in year 10. Assumes a 5% rate of return on an investment of $200,000. Does not take into account year end distributions or allocations.

⁴ Income is considered return of capital until the adjusted cost base falls to zero at which point it is considered capital gains. Does not take into account year end distributions.

2. CREATE DOLLAR-FOR-DOLLAR TAX DEDUCTIONS

When retirement arrives, most of the familiar deductions (RRSP, pension, child care, union dues, etc.) are no longer available. However, there are still some appealing options.

RRSP top-up: Those with unused RRSP room should make a lump sum final contribution prior to converting to a RRIF. The resulting deductions can then be spread over several years. For more information, see Tax Managed Strategy #4 (MK1393E).

Borrow-to-invest: By using RRIF or other discretionary income to pay the interest on funds borrowed to invest, a tax deduction can be created. This strategy is for investors with discretionary income not needed for living expenses. For more information, see Tax Managed Strategy #3 (MK1380E).

IDEAL CANDIDATES

Investors who:

- Are retired or near retirement
- Seek to maximize their government benefits

TAKE ACTION

To maximize benefits and retirement income:

- Identify investments that could be re-structured for more favourable tax treatment
- Explore the benefits of prescribed annuities
- Make withdrawals from a mutual or segregated fund where a large portion of the payment is considered a return of capital and the balance is capital gains
- Consider the tax efficiencies of Series T mutual funds
- Make a lump sum RRSP contribution prior to converting to a RRIF
- Consider a “borrowing to invest” strategy
